At the Bryant Theatre on Tuesday night Harry K. Derry will appear in "Mr. Lazarus," a comedy by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford. The story deals with an Australian miner, renamed "as from the dead," after a long absence from his home, the old home of one John Money, killed in a railroad accident, whose life insurance has been collected by the widow, who remarried and occupies a judging house. The miner has come back to New York to meet his son, and emotions lead him to do the right thing.

"The Princess Pat," a good winter engagement on Monday night at the C. H. Theatre, formerly the Chamberlain Theatre, has been chosen to play the rôle of the young princess.

The Standard Theatre, Broadway at Nineteenth street, will begin its third season Monday night, when John Cort will present the Henry Blossom Victorian Burlesque comic opera success, "The Princess Pat."

Daly's Theatre opens on Monday afternoon with a melodrama called "The Hour of Temptation" as the attraction.

BURLESQUE CARNIVAL AT COLUMBIA THEATRE

"Burlesque" Billy Watson and Ed Lee Wrothe, heading the "New Burlesque Carnival" come to the Columbia Theatre. The entertainment is divided into two parts, in the first of which Mr. Watson will be seen in a new act called "The Clockmaker," while the second is devoted to Mr. Wrothe, who will present scenes in the "Harem," "Higgins at the Bar" and "Higgins at Fort Creek." The comedians will be supported by Owen Martin, Mabelle Morgan, Estelle Colbert, Helen Patay Delany, Fred Gollins, Max Purham, Herman Gibson, Gus Hooley and many burlesque stars.

The members of the Melodeon Stars and Watson have provided themselves with several new comedy scenes and musical features and dances.

"MORNING GLORIES" IN OLYMPIC BURLESQUE

"Morning Glories" will be seen at the Olympic Theatre. One of the features to be presented is "The Passion Dance of Death." Among the members of the company are Bert Bertrand, Thomas Shumate, Hattie Dean and Florence Darley.
